

The End of Pandemic-Era Flexibilities in Medicaid Home- and Community-based Services

What Agency Leaders Need to Know

This resource is designed to help Medicaid agency leaders, as well as their colleagues in aging & disability agencies, prepare for the end of federal flexibilities that Medicaid adopted to support older adults and individuals with disabilities during the pandemic. This is particularly important as the federal declaration of the COVID-19 Public Health Emergency (PHE) is scheduled to sunset on May 11, 2023. This guide provides background information about those flexibilities, outlines steps Medicaid agency leaders need to take before they expire, lays out the array of authorities Medicaid programs used to institute those flexibilities, and inventories how states used 1915(c) Appendix K authority (the most frequently used pathway) to support affected Medicaid members.

BACKGROUND

Older adults and people with disabilities were at heightened risk of serious illness and death from exposure to COVID-19. In addition, these individuals would have been disproportionately likely to be hospitalized or faced placement in a skilled nursing facility, should the home- and community-based services (HCBS) on which they relied have been interrupted or entirely suspended. In recognition of this, the federal government gave Medicaid programs broad flexibility to respond to the impacts of the COVID-19 pandemic on these Medicaid members, effective in 2020.

In response, all states adopted some combination of federal flexibilities to modify how and from whom individuals received services, which allowed older adults and individuals with disabilities to remain safely at home without reducing their needed services. These flexibilities also helped states shore up the HCBS delivery system and ensure access to care. In particular, an overwhelming majority of states used Appendix K authority (a standalone appendix to 1915(c) HCBS waivers used by states in emergencies) to:

- Expand covered services, such as home-delivered meals;
- Expand provider types, notably including authority to pay family caregivers for providing services; and
- Implement provider retention payments and temporary rate increases, particularly for direct care workers.

In addition, states used several other authorities (see table below) to suspend prior authorization requirements and/or cost sharing; use telehealth for assessments, evaluations, and person-centered planning; and suspend provider enrollment and credentialing requirements.

STATE ACTION NEEDED

The federal government intends to end the PHE declaration on May 11, 2023. Many emergency flexibilities will expire on that date, but others are effective to a sunset date specified by the state or a maximum period set by the federal government. As this date approaches, Medicaid and aging and disability agency leaders should determine:

1. how best to meet member needs ongoing;
2. which flexibilities to make a permanent feature of their program (if allowed under federal law) and which to sunset;
3. the timeframe and process for seeking necessary approvals from CMS; and
4. how to ensure effective transitions for all those involved, including engaging and informing members, caregivers, and providers about any changes that are being made, and how this will affect access, delivery and receipt of HCBS services ongoing. For example, states like Louisiana, Ohio and North Carolina are engaging with stakeholders, including members and their families, about the implications of continuing or discontinuing these flexibilities.

Medicaid Disaster Relief Authorities

Authority	Description of Authority and Permissible Flexibilities	Effective Date	Termination Date
State-Specific 1135 Waivers	Section 1135 of the Social Security Act gives the Secretary of Health and Human Services (HHS) the authority to waive certain Medicare, Medicaid or CHIP requirements in areas impacted by a federally declared public health emergency. These waivers are targeted to policies that ensure sufficient health care items and services are available to eligible individuals during a crisis. These authorities apply across the entire Medicaid and CHIP program. A CMS-developed Medicaid template included options among which states selected including: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Waivers of prior authorization requirements and extensions of existing authorizations; • Waivers of person-centered planning requirements; • Flexibility in timelines for preadmission screening and resident review assessments to take place and Nursing Home Minimum Data Set authorizations for nursing facility residents; • Extension of fair hearing timelines; • A range of options for expanding the pool of available providers, such as allowing out-of-state providers to deliver services without being licensed in the state, and expediting waiver enrollment; and • Flexibility in deadlines and process for certain reporting requirements. States submitted their pre-populated waiver requests to CMS through a portal.	March 1, 2020	Expires May 11, 2023 (end of the PHE). There is no phasedown period.
1135 Blanket Waivers	Section 1135 of the Social Security Act gives the Secretary of HHS the authority to waive certain Medicare, Medicaid or CHIP requirements in areas impacted by a federally declared public health emergency. In addition to the state-specific waivers (above), CMS provided blanket

Please see this link for information on the status of these waivers, an important example of which was waiver of the three-day hospitalization that is required for Medicare coverage of a skilled nursing facility stay.
Appendix K for 1915(c) Waivers	Appendix K is a standalone appendix that may be used by states during emergency situations to request amendments to approved 1915(c) HCBS waivers. It only applies to services delivered under 1915(c) waivers. CMS provided a COVID-focused template that states used for each 1915(c) for which they were seeking flexibilities. Key areas of flexibility included: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Delivering services remotely or via technology; • Allowing family members to be paid to provide care in the home; • Retention bonuses and temporary rate increases for HCBS providers; and • Changes in the assessment and person-centered planning process. This was the authority states most frequently used to respond to the needs of older adults and individuals with disabilities. More information on how states used this pathway is in the table that follows.	January 27, 2020 or any later date elected by state	The date identified by the state, or if none, no later than six months after the expiration of the PHE (November 11, 2023)
Attachment K for Section 1115 Waivers	Attachment K is an extension of a state's section 1115 demonstration Special Terms and Conditions (STCs) for those states that deliver LTSS through that waiver authority. They are used for emergency situations to request modifications to an approved 1115 waiver demonstration's STCs and only applies to the LTSS services contained in that demonstration. States were instructed to use the Appendix K template to submit requests for these flexibilities.	January 27, 2020 or any later date elected by state	The date identified by the state, or if none, no later than six months after the expiration of the PHE (November 11, 2023)

Authority	Description of Authority and Permissible Flexibilities	Effective Date	Termination Date
Medicaid Disaster Relief State Plan Amendments (SPAs) for the COVID-19 PHE	The disaster relief SPAs allow states to make temporary changes in their State Plan. It provided broad options allowable within the existing State Plan, and it is not applicable to pre-existing 1915(c) waivers or section 1115 demonstrations. CMS provided states with a template to complete and submit. Options in the CMS template include the following options related to: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Eligibility: adopt new groups, increase income limits, and loosen nonfinancial requirements, such as extending the reasonable opportunity period for noncitizens. • Enrollment: expand presumptive eligibility and extend redetermination periods for non-Modified Adjusted Gross Income (MAGI) populations. • Cost Sharing: suspend out-of-pocket costs and allow hardship waivers. • Benefits: add new benefits, modify current benefits, and expand telehealth. • Payment: increase rates for certain services. • Prescription Drugs: increase supply limits, expand prior authorization, and/or add to state preferred drug lists. 	March 1, 2020 or any later date elected by state	Expires May 11, 2023 (end of the PHE) unless state seeks a temporary extension through a streamlined SPA review process.
1115 Waivers	Section 1115 of the Social Security Act gives the Secretary of HHS broad authority to approve demonstration projects that are likely to promote the objectives of the Medicaid program. These are broad waivers that are used for more than just disaster response. However, CMS developed a 1115 waiver opportunity for COVID-specific flexibilities. This option was available to all states, regardless of whether the state had an existing 1115 waiver (as opposed to Attachment K, see above, which was only for states with an existing 1115 waiver to deliver LTSS). This CMS-developed 1115 pathway allowed states to implement changes to state-plan services	March 1, 2020 or any later date elected by state	No later than 60 days after the end of the public health emergency (or July 11, 2023).

CONCLUSION

Medicaid and aging and disability agency leaders must work together to determine how they will meet the needs of older adults and individuals with disabilities as federal emergency authorities expire. Agency leaders must decide which flexibilities to make a permanent feature of their program and which ones to allow to sunset. This work is of critical importance, given the profound impact state decisions could have on members with the most significant health care and social support needs. It could impact how individuals access services (e.g., from paid family care givers) and the array of services and supports available to them. Members have been accessing services under these emergency authorities for nearly three years and are likely unaware of the temporary nature of these policies.

These decisions are best accomplished with input from those who will be impacted. This includes Medicaid members, HCBS and home health providers, and other community partners, like Area Agencies on Aging. Agency leaders should identify a range of opportunities and pathways to gather this input, such as through listening sessions, notice and comment periods, and other means.

Once the agency leaders make these decisions, they will need to provide impacted individuals with appropriate notice and time to transition. This is particularly important for members who may experience a contraction in services or a change in the means by which they access services. HCBS providers also need appropriate notice and information about transitioning back to pre-pandemic policies and processes, especially about any changes in payment and rates. If agency leaders decide to make flexibilities a permanent feature of their program, they will also need to seek necessary state and federal approvals to do so.

At the beginning of the pandemic, Medicaid and aging and disability agencies took swift and decisive action to ensure older adults and individuals with disabilities could remain safely at home. As we prepare for the end of the PHE, agency leaders need to bring the same level of attention and care to how the program emerges from the emergency period and continues to meet the needs of individuals who rely on HCBS.
